Reported Speech (Past)

Reported speech (past) is when you tell somebody else what you or a person said before. We usually introduce reported statements with “said” or “told”.

Introductory sentence: He said that _____.
 He told me that _____.
 He said to me that _____.

For example:

Anna said, “I really enjoy playing rollercoasters at Dream World.”

The other method is to summarize or tell about what someone said. This is called “reported speech” or “indirect speech”. When we want to report what someone said without speech marks and without necessarily using exactly the same words, we can use indirect speech (also called reported speech).

For example:

Anna said that she really enjoyed playing rollercoasters at Dream World.

Grammar Rules

When transforming statements, we need to change:

1. Pronoun
2. Tense
3. Place and time expression

1. Pronoun

Direct Speech	Reported Speech	Direct Speech	Reported Speech
I	he/she	my	your, his, her
we	you/they	our	your, their
you	I, he, she	their	our, your
they	you, we	myself	yourself, himself, herself
me	him, her	ourselves	yourselves, themselves
you	me, him, her, us, them	themselves	ourselves, yourselves
them	us, you
him/her	me, you

2. Tense

Direct Statement	Reported Statement
Present simple	Past simple
Present continuous	Past continuous
Present perfect	Past perfect
Present perfect continuous	Past perfect continuous
Past simple	Past perfect
Past continuous	Past perfect continuous
Past perfect	Past perfect
will	would
shall	should
may	might
can	could

3. Place and time expression

now	→	then, at that time
today	→	that day
tomorrow	→	the next day, the following day
yesterday	→	the day before, the previous day
ago	→	before, the previous
tonight	→	that night
last night	→	the night before, the previous night
here	→	there
this	→	that these	→	those

Examples

■ Rule 1. If the reported speech has 1st person pronoun (e.g., I, we, me, my, mine, us, our), and the reporting verb has 3rd person pronoun (e.g., he, she, they, it, his, her, their, its), the pronoun of the reported speech is changed according to the pronoun (subject) of the reporting verb.

Examples:

Direct Speech	Indirect Speech
He said, "I will buy a camera".	He said that he would buy a camera.
She said, "I work in a hospital".	She said that she worked in a hospital.
They said, "We have won a prize".	They said that they had won the prize.
He said, "I like the music".	He said that he liked the music.

She said, "My son is ill".	She said that her son was ill.
They said, "We have studied our books".	They said that they had studied their books.
She said, "I am cleaning my room".	She said that she is cleaning her room.

■ Rule 2. The 1st person pronoun (e.g., I, we, my, our, me, us) of reported speech is not changed, if the reporting verb has also 1st person pronoun (e.g., I, we) as its subject.

Examples:

Direct Speech	Indirect Speech
I said, "I write a letter".	I said that I wrote a letter.
We said, "We saw a joker".	We said that we had seen a joker.
I said, "I finished my work".	I said that I had finished my work.
We said, "We are decorating our house".	We said that we were decorating our house.

■ Rule 3. The 2nd person pronoun (e.g., you, your) of the reported speech is always changed according to the 'object pronoun' of the reporting verb. In such cases, a pronoun is given which act as an object in reporting verb. The following examples are intentionally given with a common sentence for learning the rule.

Examples:

Direct Speech	Indirect Speech
He said to me , " You won a prize".	He said to me that I had won a prize.
He said to her , " You won a prize".	He said to her that she had won a prize.
He said to them , " You won a prize".	He said to them that they had won a prize.
She said to him , " You won a prize".	She said to him that he had won a prize.
He said to me , " Your shirt is nice".	He said to me that my shirt was nice.
He said to her , " Your shirt is nice".	He said to her that her shirt was nice.
He said to them , " Your shirts are nice".	He said to them that their shirts were nice.
She said to him , " Your shirt is nice".	She said to him that his shirt was nice.

■ Rule 4. The 3rd person pronoun (e.g., he, she, they, it, his, her, their, its, them) of the reported speech is not changed in indirect speech.

Examples:

Direct Speech	Indirect Speech
She said, " He works in a factory".	She said that he worked in a factory".
They said, " He has passed the exam".	They said that he had passed the exam.
He said, " She will buy a car".	He said that she would buy a car.
