In September 2015, the 193 world leaders came up with visions for a safer, healthier, and more prosperous world by 2030. They are called “Sustainable Development Goals” or SDGs. These goals are designed intentionally to introduce 17 new approaches to development which cover People, Planet, Prosperity, Peace, and Partnerships dimensions. These “5 Ps” balance and support progress on another to achieve a better and more sustainable future for all.

For People, it is to end poverty and hunger in all forms and dimensions. This means it is suggested that everyone gain an access to basic needs, such as nutrition, education, clean water, sanitation, and electricity. Also, it is suggested that all humans fulfil their potential in dignity and equality and in a good environment. Women and girls around the world will be given equal opportunities for jobs, food, and education. No one will be left behind.

For Planet, it is to protect the planet from degradation. At the moment, the world is facing a climate emergency that is very serious - global warming. This problem will lead to significant risks to health, livings, food security, water supply, human and nature security, and economic growth. Therefore, it is recommended that urgent action on climate change, as well as responsible consumption and production, put into action so that it can stop the problems.

For Prosperity, it is to ensure that all human beings can enjoy prosperous and fulfilling lives and that economic, social, and technological progress occurs in harmony. Inequality is one of the issues of this generation. There is eight percent of people who live on less than $1.90 per day while the rich are still rich. So, it is suggested that everyone not take advantages of each other and that sustainable economic successes be achieved in manners that promote and attain fair justice system.

For Peace, it is to set out goals to foster peaceful, just, and inclusive societies. Conflicts, terrorism, and other sorts of difficulty have been endangering global peace. Furthermore, weak institutions can become targets for those who threaten global harmony. Therefore, it is suggested that the international community come together to promote and protect peace around the world, not with military powers, but with strong institutions of justice.

The background features a stylized cityscape with various buildings and greenery. In the foreground, there is a large, golden trophy with a '#1' medal hanging from it. Several people are depicted in celebratory poses: one person is sitting on the trophy, another is climbing it, and others are standing around it. The scene is set against a light green background with stylized clouds.

For Partnership, it is an important factor in all the 17 goals. As we all know, governments alone cannot achieve the SDGs. It needs global collaboration across geographies and sectors to mobilize finance, technology, and trade – especially for those poorest and most vulnerable countries around the world. Although the SDGs were agreed upon by the UN members, it is recommended that achieving the SDGs actually involve all entities in the international community.
