Because we use a lot of energy, the world is hotter.

The polar ice is melting is a result and what after because is a reason or cause which is the fact that the world's temperature is rising.

what after because is a reason or cause

result

cause

Because it rained
unexpectedly, we couldn't go to school
yesterday.

We use a comma after the
because-clause:

cause

result

We couldn't go to school yesterday because it rained unexpectedly.

We can use because between an effect and a cause without putting a comma.

because

When we use because,
we are focusing on
the reason:

Because is followed
by the reason of any event.
