The Story of Peter

Peter lives with his family in a small town near a large factory. The factory produces chemicals, and its smoke and waste pollute the air and water. Because of this pollution, Peter and his family often feel sick. They have problems like coughing, skin rashes, and headaches. The doctor says that if they keep living in this environment, their health might get worse. There is also a risk of serious diseases in the future, like cancer or lung problems.
