Knee push-ups are a modified version of the traditional push-up that places less strain on your body. Begin in a plank position with your knees on the ground and hands slightly wider than shoulder-width apart. Lower your chest towards the ground by bending your elbows, then push back up. This exercise strengthens your chest, shoulders, and triceps.

Chair squats are a great way to build lower body strength while using a chair for support.

Stand in front of a chair with your feet shoulder-width apart. Lower yourself to sit on the chair by bending your knees and pushing your hips back. Stand back up to the starting position. This exercise targets your thighs, hips, and buttocks and helps improve balance and coordination.

Wall sits are a simple exercise that strengthens your lower body muscles. Stand with your back against a wall and your feet about two feet away from it. Slide down the wall until your knees form a 90-degree angle and hold the position for as long as you can. This exercise builds endurance in your quadriceps, hamstrings, and glutes.

Standing calf raises are an easy way to strengthen your calf muscles and improve balance. Stand with your feet hip-width apart and lift your heels off the ground, rising onto your toes. Lower your heels back down and repeat. This exercise helps tone your calves and enhances stability.
