Last year, people in Thailand celebrated Songkran Festival with great joy. The festival started on April 13th and lasted for three days. Many families visited temples to make merit and offered food to monks. Children poured water on the hands of elders to show respect and to receive blessings. In the streets, people had the water fights and used water guns, buckets, and even hoses. Everyone got wet and had a lot of fun. Tourists also came from around the world to enjoy the celebration. The atmosphere was colorful and joyful. People wore bright shirts and danced to traditional music. It was a special time when families gathered, neighbors shared food, and everyone enjoyed the Thai New Year together.
