Natee's Last Songkran Festival

Last Songkran, Natee celebrated the festival with his family in Chiang Mai. It was an amazing experience. On the first day, he woke up early and went to the temple to make merit and offer food to the monks. Many people were there, and the atmosphere was peaceful and respectful. After that, he poured scented water on Buddha statues and asked for blessings from the monks and elders.

At home, he had a small family gathering. Natee helped his mother cook traditional Thai food like Pad Thai and green curry. He also cleaned the house with his family to welcome good luck for the new year. In the afternoon, he wore a traditional Thai costume and went out with his friends. They brought water guns and buckets of water, and they had a water fight in the streets. Everyone was smiling and laughing, and Natee got completely soaked, but he didn't mind—it was so much fun!

He also poured water on the hands of his grandparents and asked for their blessings, which made him feel very connected to his culture. In the evening, he watched a traditional dance show in the town square and took photos to remember the special day.

Overall, Natee's Songkran was full of joy, tradition, and quality time with people he loves. He really enjoyed every moment and can't wait for next year's celebration.
