WHAT IS HAPPENING
HERE?

What happened in this picture?

What happened in this picture?

because

When we use because,
we are focusing on
the reason:

Because is followed by the reason of any event.

Giving Reasons with 'Because'

- Structure 1:
Because + reason, main clause

Because the world is getting hotter, the polar ice is melting.

Because we use a lot of energy, the world is hotter.

- Structure 2:
Main clause + because + reason

The world is hotter because we use a lot of energy.

Cause and Effect

The polar ice is melting
is a result and what after because is a reason or cause which is the fact that the world's temperature is rising.

what after because is a reason
or cause

result

cause

Because it rained unexpectedly, we couldn't go to school
yesterday.

We use a comma after the
because-clause:

result

cause

We couldn't go to school yesterday because it rained unexpectedly.

We can use because between an effect and a cause without putting a comma.
